WOLFE VISITS CITY

Democratic Candidate For U. S. Senator Delivers Two Addresses on Thursday Last.

Tham P. Wolfe of La Crosse, orator nominee for United States senator, delivered a stirring address at the fair grounds Thursday afternoon. A large crowd gathered in the grandstand and listened intently to his speech. In the evening Mr. Wolfe delivered another address, this time in front of the postoffice, where a large audience had gathered to hear Weber's band concert. In both addresses Mr. Wolfe lauded the administration of President Wilson, particularly his success in maintaining peace with honor among the nations of Europe and his handling of the Mexican situation. He emphasized the fact that peace and prosperity reign in the United States while the other world powers are under a yoke of war and poverty, the result of greed on the part of crowned heads.

Mr. Wolfe is a forceful speaker and a man who commands universal esteem. He intends to make a strenuous fight for election and expects to be in Stevens Point again before the campaign closes. His appearance here at this time was somewhat of a surprise as it had been announced that during the Democratic nomination for governor was coming along. However, a change of plans was made and Mr. Williams, who was in Stevens Point for a short time Thursday morning, continued on to Portage, leaving Mr. Wolfe to fill his local engagement. E. E. Browne of Waupaca, Republican nominee for representative in congress, also spoke at the fair grounds Thursday afternoon.

FORMER LOCAL PASTOR.

Commenting on the transfer of Rev. F. A. Nimits from Kaukauna to Beaver Dam the Kaukauna Sun stated that his departure would be regretted by many besides the members of the church. Mr. Nimits was at one time stationed in Stevens Point and retains a large friendship among local people. It is a coincidence that his successor at Kaukauna is Rev. F. L. Hayward, for the past two years pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church here.

WAS NATIVE OF CITY.

Delmar A. Moe, a native of Stevens Point and nephew of Mrs. P. J. Bresnahan and Andrew Donaldson of this city, died at St. Mary's hospital at Wausau at 5:55 o'clock last Thursday evening. Mr. Moe's home was in Rhineland where he was employed by a veneer company, and he was taken to the Wausau hospital for an operation two weeks ago.

Mr. Moe will be kindly remembered by many Stevens Point people as he was born in this city and resided here until he was about 16 years of age. He attended the local public schools and business college. At death he was about 35 years of age.

He leaves his wife who was formerly Miss Anna Swendenberg of Rhineland, and three sons, the youngest of whom is only seven months. He also leaves his father, Dan Moe of Reno Point, Idaho, and a sister, Mrs. Otto Lalk of Tonopah, Nevada.

The funeral was held at Rhineland Saturday afternoon. Andrew Donaldson of this city attended.

RESIGNS PASTORATE

Rev. I. Shlinkmann To Give Up Word Here on October 1.

At the meeting of the officers and trustees of Friedens Evangelical church last Wednesday evening, the resignation of the pastor, Rev. Frederick Shlinkmann, was read and accepted. The resignation becomes effective on Oct. 1, after which Rev. Shlinkmann and family will remove to Illinois, where they formerly resided.

Mr. Shlinkmann came to Stevens Point from Petaluma, Cal., the middle of last June. In addition to the local church, he had been in charge of the church at Weyauwega, and the inconvenience of this arrangement, particularly for a man with a family, is the chief reason for his resignation, it is stated. The officials of the church are making the necessary arrangements to secure another pastor.

Witnesses of the accident stated that one of the rear wheels passed over one of her legs just below the hip. First aid was given her at Krembs drug store, after which she was taken home and a doctor called. No bones were broken, but she sustained a number of bruises and for a day or two suffered from the shock.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Several Cases in the County Make Necessary Strict Preventative Measures.

The discovery of several cases of infantile paralysis in Portage county and the fact that there has been at least one death from the dread disease, puts the problem of preventing its spread squarely up to the health authorities of the city and the various towns and villages. There is no mistaking the danger and only strict quarantine measures can avert an epidemic. The United States public health service discusses the disease and describes preventative methods as follows:

To control the present epidemic of infantile paralysis, according to a statement issued by the United States Public Health Service today, the chain of infection between persons harboring germs of the disease and the well members of the community should be broken. Infantile paralysis is probably caused by a very minute organism found in the nasal, mouth and the bowel discharges of those who have the disease or who are carriers of the germ without themselves suffering from the ailment. All of the steps in the spread of the infection are not known but if this germ can be prevented from passing from the infected to the well person, the disease will cease.

Infantile paralysis is not a disease of recent origin. Sporadic or scattered cases have occurred throughout the country for many years but it is only during the last decade that the infection has assumed epidemic proportions in the United States. The present epidemic in New York City, on account of its magnitude and virulence, has awakened the residents of many communities to the danger of the importation of the disease into their own midst. This danger is real, but if due precautions are exercised it is believed that the epidemic will subside.

The actual control of the present epidemic must be left to the city, state and federal health authorities. These organizations will properly quarantine and care for affected persons, prescribe sanitary measures and limit as may be necessary the travel of individuals in order to protect neighboring districts from the infection. Individuals and communities, however, can do much toward their own protection.

Poliomyelitis is probably spread directly or indirectly, through the medium of infective secretions. Account must therefore be taken by communities of every means by which such secretions are disseminated. Promiscuous expectoration should be controlled. The common drinking cup affords a method for the interchange of material of this nature and should therefore be abolished. Rigid cleanliness of glasses and utensils at soda fountains, in saloons and other public places should be enforced. Flies, roaches and other vermin, by coming in contact with infected secretions, may possibly convey them to our food and thus directly bring about the development of disease. Therefore eliminate insects. Street and house dust bear a definite relation to the spread of many infections and it is not unreasonable to presume that they may be a factor in the dissemination of infantile paralysis. Maintain strict cleanliness of streets, yards and alleys in order to prevent the breeding of insects and vermin. See that all garbage and waste are properly cared for and collected at regular and frequent intervals. Guard all food supplies, especially milk and other perishable products. Digestive troubles of children arising from the ingestion of food of questionable quality may lower resistance. Assemblies of children in infected localities are to be discouraged, if not actually forbidden. While the above measures are in a sense general, and applicable to many epidemic diseases, their importance should not be overlooked.

Individual preventative measures may be thus summarized:

Summon a physician at once and immediately notify the health officer of the presence of the disease. If the disease is present in the community, medical aid should be sought whenever a child is sick no matter how light the illness; many cases of infantile paralysis begin with a slight indisposition. Should the illness prove to be infantile paralysis isolate the patient, place a competent person in charge, and reduce all communication with the sick room to a minimum. Hospital care is preferable, not only for the child but in order to better safeguard against the spread of the disease. The sick room should be well ventilated and screened. Nasal and mouth secretions should be received in cloths, placed in a paper bag and burned. The clothing of the child, the bed linen, and the excretions should be disinfected in the same manner as for typhoid fever, that is by boiling, the long continued application of 5 per cent carbolic, or other well recognized disinfectant. The same is true of dishes and drinking vessels. Nurses should exercise the same precautions as regards cleanliness of hands in caring for infantile paralysis patients as for those afflicted with other contagious diseases.

A child may convey the disease to others even after a lapse of several weeks. For this reason quarantine should be maintained for a considerable period, usually from six to eight weeks, and the above precautions should be adhered to during this time. Disinfection of the room following recovery is advisable.

It is easy enough to quit smoking at night, and fully as easy to begin again the next morning.

How One Five Dollar Bill Settled $290 Worth of Debts in Pay-Up Week.

Winfield, Iowa, carried on an experiment during the first National Pay-Up Week and demonstrated to the great surprise of the committee, which had it in charge, what one five dollar bill will do when it is kept moving paying up debts.

This five dollar bill was marked with a slip of paper stating, "This is a Pay-Up Week five dollar bill. This five dollar bill is to be used only for payment of accounts. Accept it and go at once and pay someone else. Sign your name so we can see how many dollars in accounts it will pay in one week." At the end of the week the bill was found, the names counted and, to the surprise of the committee, fifty-eight names had been signed, showing that the total debts paid were $290.00. This shows what money will do when it is kept in circulation and also demonstrates the importance of National Pay-Up Week as a time when accounts are squared and slates wiped clean for a new start.

People everywhere have heartily endorsed this National Pay-Up Week movement. They have pledged themselves to pay up and in order to do so they have depended upon others to help them clear up their own books. It has always been a success.

Now, Pay-Up Week is coming to Stevens Point. It is going to pass prosperity around here. It is going to help clean up our books and start with clean slates for a new business year. Join in and help out by paying the other fellow so this fellow can then pay you. The whole community will be benefitted and every individual will be benefitted.

Hypocrites are men who think one way and lead you to believe they think another.

I am willing, no matter what my personal fortunes may be, to play for the verdict of mankind. Personally, it will be a matter of indifference to me what the verdict on the 7th of November is, provided I feel any degree of confidence that when a later jury sits, I shall get their judgment in my favor. A visitor from the country at the Stevens Point fair said he liked the display of cattle and chickens and horses, but thought the exhibit of politicians was about the best on the grounds.

For persistence, the Stevens Point fair association takes first premium in the sweepstakes. In the face of adverse weather conditions year after year, the organization has labored on without complaint, always hoping for something better. This year capped the climax, for with wintry weather all that prevented record breaking crowds from attending, the loss, in a material sense, is greater than ever before. For loyalty, self-sacrifice and optimism, the officers and directors of the association stand alone among similar organizations of this part of the state.

That the Republican party is a party of inaction as well as reaction is shown by the vote in the Senate on the Emergency Revenue measure. Every Republican Senator, save five, when voting on that bill, voted against it.

1. A non-partisan tariff commission.
2. Readjustment of tariff on dyestuffs.
3. Protection against post-bellum dumping.
4. Tax on excessive profits on war munitions.
5. Inheritance tax on swollen fortunes, the most equitable of all taxes.
6. Increase in income surtaxes—a small increase in the taxes of the very rich.

Of such are the leaders of the forces that nominated Hughes, and who will be in power in the event of Republican success.

There is no hidden motive in National Pay-Up Week which will be observed in all parts of the United States, Stevens Point included, from October 2 to 7, inclusive. It is a simple, straight-forward movement that aims at community prosperity, and the fact that it is national in scope gives it added force. Pay-Up Week is not meant for any particular class. It works a hardship on no one. It merely focuses attention on the fact that money, when kept out of circulation, is doing nothing toward promoting community prosperity; and at the same time emphasizes the fact that a moving dollar is the constructive power in life. "You pay me and I'll pay you," is the slogan for the week and it is hoped that when it is over that there will be more money at work, more accounts balanced and more people happy because they're "square" with their fellow men. The movement deserves the support of every resident of the community and it is probable that the only ones who don't join in will be the habitual "dead beats."

Formerly there was a good deal of distinction in sending a boy to college. Taking these higher courses of study was an exceptional thing. The whole town watched the student. He was looked at as a scholastic wonder. It was assumed he had literary and bookish tastes, and he was considered as designed for a learned profession.

The crowd that enters college portals today is different. The number of those seeking college degrees is multiplied many times. There is a herd of rich men's sons. To many of these and some others as well, study is a mere side issue. It is an unpleasant feature of the course, to be evaded as far as possible.

With great numbers of students, the dominating motive is to engage in athletics and enjoy social life. With even more, the motive is to make money. The idea has become widespread that the college man earns better pay. The old scholastic ideals are gone with the traditional burning of midnight oil.

And yet the change is not wholly bad. Athletics and social life have their high values. This mingling and conflict of personality serves valuable ends. The boy may learn more human nature, more art of executive management, in his campus and fraternity life, than any professor can teach him.

The great trouble is that prevailing tendencies encourage young men to undervalue the experience of the ages. They may make successes in business even if they neglect their studies. But they can not be turned out broadly educated citizens, unless they apply themselves diligently to the search after wisdom. After all, that is what the college is chiefly for. When it turns out mere money getters, it misses the purpose for which its endowments were created.

One of the financial crazes of the period is investment in automobile stocks. The more successful companies are making millions. Many a small investor is tempted to draw savings out of the bank, where they are now earning an inglorious four per cent, and take a "flier."

But like the war munition business, it's a case in which fools rush in where angels fear to tread. The big dividends suggest that the price of motor cars has not yet reached hard pan. It is the universal rule in business that big profits can not continue indefinitely. Large gains stimulate competition. The cream has been taken off. Those who went in early have grown fat. Those that go in now may fare on skim milk.

There is a rush of new concerns into the business. It has been a golden field. Ambitious foremen and superintendents are looking for capitalists to finance their ideas. Capitalists are looking for chances to invest. Many new companies will be formed to struggle for the spoil.

Herculean a car two or three years old lacked some features of the late machines that seemed absolutely vital. Now the new cars seem about perfect. It is hard to see how they can be much behind the game even in five years.

This should lead people having a well made car to hold on to it longer. The extravagance of constant trading off machines for the latest models will become apparent. As prices fall, people of moderate means buy the machines. They purchase with the purpose of keeping their cars for a number of years. The demand created by the incessant rush for the latest models will fall off.

With new competition, less frequent changes of cars, and closer prices, it seems as if the business, as far as profit goes, has passed the high point of success. Those who buy motor stocks now should think of these tendencies.

FAVOR CONSOLIDATION.

The Buena Vista school controversy glided into the limelight again today, when the Portage county committee on common schools, at the conclusion of a hearing held this morning and afternoon, announced a decision favorable to the pro-consolidation faction. The committee, by a vote of 2 to 1, granted the petition to make the big district, as established last fall, into two districts. One of these will be composed of common school districts Nos. 1, 3 and 4 and a part of 2, leaving the remainder of district 2 by itself, with what is known as the Valley school. The committee will meet again on Sept. 30 to complete its action. What the next step in the proposition will be is considerable of an enigma.

It's fortunate for the rest of the world that Mexico hasn't any colonies.

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

Amateur gardeners and farmers who wish to diversify their crops will find cucumbers a fairly safe and profitable product. The sale for this class of commodities is steady in all stages of growth. There is no rush about picking or marketing.

Cucumbers ought to return a net profit of $200 an acre. A Michigan grower reports $250 an acre. Grocers, pickle factories and town families will take the output, but the marketing should be arranged for in advance. It is also an easy matter for growers to put up pickles, and this system adds to the profits.

The soil needs to be light, warm and full of vegetable matter. Land that has borne clover is good. It must not be soggy. In drought periods the vines should be watered daily, but this applies to garden products generally as well as to cucumbers. If the ground is not considered just right it is advisable to use well rotted manure in the hills before planting. The best way is to use well fertilized land that was plowed in the fall, adding a little barnyard manure to the cucumber hills as they are formed. Have the soil worked down fine with harrow or rake and mark out in checks at least four feet each way. Many prefer five or six feet. It is easier to cultivate check rows than single rows. The hill system is preferred because it gives plants more leaf surface. Better drainage is also secured in case of excessive rains.

Four to six seeds should be dropped in each hill and lightly covered with soil. In case of unfavorable weather or uneven growth additional plantings may be made. Second and third plantings can also be made for prolonging the marketing of cucumbers and for raising pickle stock. In order to get an early start seeds may be planted in a hotbed of moderate temperature or in window pots in the dwelling. Planting in the open ground is to be deferred until the soil is in nice order and danger from frost is over. Whatever transplanting is necessary should be done in the evening.

Those who are engaged in this line of gardening on an extensive scale should consult the owners of pickle factories as to prices and time of marketing. The pickle companies sometimes prefer to furnish the seed. When a large crop is to be raised the cultivation can be with an ordinary two horse corn cultivator. Planting in drills seems to be the easier method, in the opinion of some, but the majority of experts think that results are better with the hill system. A corn planter may be used if desired, and the plants may be thinned out as they develop. Seed is generally used at the rate of one ounce to fifty hills.

Insects are often troublesome in cucumber growing. For cutworms use poisoned bran about four inches from where the plants are coming through. For striped beetle dust frequently with plaster, which acts as a repellent. Heliothrips powder in water is also effective in destroying the striped bug. During the picking season the vines are gone over regularly at short intervals and the cucumbers removed as soon as they attain marketable size. This will prevent any check in the growth of vines and increase the number of cucumbers that can be secured.

One of the most delicious vegetables is watercress, and yet few farmers or gardeners are trying to utilize the delicacy. No other product grows into money easier or with less trouble. It grows wild in running brooks, in ditches or around fresh ponds. All that is demanded for the raising of cress is pure water. Plant seeds in the soft earth at the edge of the water. The plants will soon fill the bed of the stream or pond. After establishing the growth of watercress it is available for use in March and throughout the season. A large sale can be worked up in any town.

Corn salad is a paying winter product, the small leaves being served like lettuce during the cool fall and early winter months. It is used for garnishing meat dishes and is in good demand. Plant late in the summer for fall and winter use. It is quite hardy and a little protection with leaves will carry it safely through the winter.

GOOD HIGHWAYS ON THE FARM

Should Be Located With Reference to Efficiency of Plant.

PRIVATE AND PUBLIC ROADS

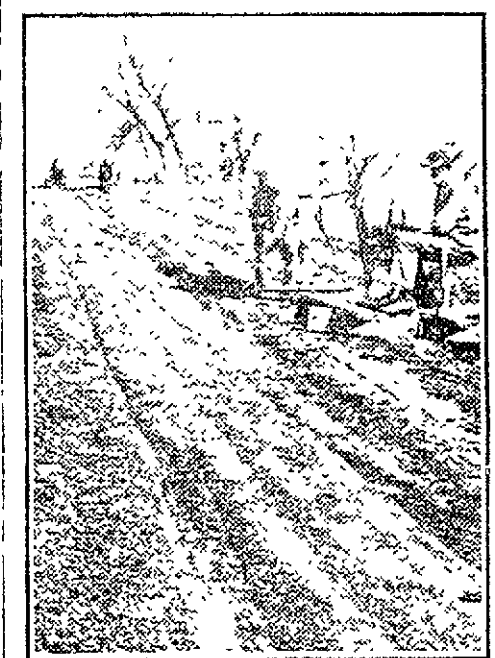

Private Farm Roads Are Called Upon to Bear Less Traffic; Hence Ordinary Methods of Construction and Maintenance Are Modified and the Use of Materials Adapted to Meet Special Requirements.

[Prepared by office of good roads, department of agriculture.]

The private roads on the farm differ in general from the public roads only in the amount and kind of traffic which they carry. The fundamental principles involved in their construction and maintenance are the same. But as the farm road is called on to bear far less traffic the ordinary methods of construction and maintenance are so modified and the use of materials so adapted as to meet the special requirements and reduce the cost. To build the farm roads in the same manner as public thoroughfares, which carry much greater traffic, in general would be a useless waste of money.

The first consideration is the location of the roads and paths about the farm. The roads and paths are a part of the permanent farm plant. Consequently they should be so located as to best serve the purpose for which they are intended, should fit in with the general scheme of the farm and at the same time should avoid as much as possible places which would require difficult and expensive construction or maintenance. The main consideration, however, must be to secure the highest degree of efficiency from the plant.

The earth road is the most common type of farm road and will probably so remain. When properly crowned, drained and maintained with the split log drag or other similar device the earth road on all but a few exceptional soils or in a few places immediately around the farm lots and buildings can be made to answer the requirements fairly well. A little grading will in general give the earth road a crown sloping from the center toward the side ditches at a rate of about one inch to the foot, and side ditches of sufficient size to carry away the storm water can usually be constructed without difficulty. If the ground is springy the side ditches may be made deeper or the ground water may be carried away by the drains.

The fundamental requirement of an earth road is always good drainage. This involves, first, the removal of the water which reaches the surface of the road from precipitation or otherwise and, second, in certain places the removal of any ground water which reaches the road from underground seepage. Surface drainage is accomplished by securing a reasonably firm crowned roadway and providing ditches of sufficient size and with ample grade and frequent outlets. Subdrainage to remove the water from beneath the road surface or to prevent its passage into the roadbed is usually accomplished most effectively by so called blind drains or by means of properly located tile drains.

Roads and drives immediately around the farmyards and barns which are used very frequently are usually of sufficient importance to warrant some surface improvement. Very light or extremely sandy soils cut up badly in dry weather, while certain heavy and absorbent soils become very sticky and soft during the rainy season. Where any considerable amount of hauling is necessary roads, over soils of this character may require to be surfaced.

Road Engineer Necessary.

James Leland Stamford, a highway engineer, who made a nation wide investigation of road work for the national committee on prisons, which is interested in promoting road building by convicts, says in regard to the lack of efficient supervision of road work generally:

"In forty-four states county road work is carried on under the supervision of county commissioners; in other states it is under the control of the sheriff. These authorities are not trained for their work, and the road work is costly and inefficient. All counties carrying on road work should obtain the services of a county road engineer who is acceptable to the state road authorities and able to work in co-operation with them."

WILSON A PROGRESSIVE BEFORE PARTY WAS BORN

Eighteen months before the birth of the Progressive party Woodrow Wilson, then governor of New Jersey, gave this definition of a progressive and so classified himself in an address before the Kansas Society of New York Jan. 20, 1911.

"By 'radical' I understand one who goes too far; by 'conservative' one who does not go far enough; by 'reactionary' one who won't go at all. I suppose I must be a progressive, which I take to be one who insists on recognizing new facts, adjusting policies to facts and circumstances as they arise."

Under Democratic influences during the six year period since standpatism was overthrown in the house of representatives, in 1910, 90 per cent of the program of reform advocated by the Progressive party has been enacted into law. "Invisible government," which is now making desperate efforts to "come back," has been driven from power under President Wilson's administration and will have no place in Washington so long as he is in the White House.

- Estimated amount to be received from state.....$10,000.00
- Balance.....$45,000.00

We further recommend that the president and clerk be instructed to ask the city council to place the sum of $45,000.00 in the tax roll.

Finance committee, By H. H. Pagel, C. W. Simonson.

On motion made and seconded the report was adopted.

The clerk read the following bids to supply the list of magazines for use in the schools: Mrs. M. L. Alban, $58.00; French, Campbell Co., $56.75; J. M. Hansen, Bennett Magazine Agency, $53.00. On motion the bid of the Hansen company was accepted at $53.00.

The superintendent then gave his monthly report showing the opening attendance at the schools to be very satisfactory, except that the number coming into the High school is so great that it is a serious problem to know how to care for them. He is already using three class rooms for assembly purposes.

He then made suggestions that resulted in the following motions:

Moved and seconded that children who have reached their sixth birthday by January 1st of the current year, may be admitted to the first grades in our public schools. Motion was carried.

Moved and seconded that C. C. Hayward and Miss Bessie Oldfield be appointed truant officers, without expense to the board. Carried.

Moved and seconded that Miss M. Rogers be made acting principal of the Jackson school while the 3rd and 4th grades are maintained there, at a salary of $2.50 per month extra to what she now receives. Carried.

Moved and seconded that the schools be closed Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, September 13 and 14, on account of the Stevens Point fair. Carried.

On motion the repair and supply committee were instructed to buy at once 36 chairs or desks for use in the High school.

Moved and seconded that kindergarten classes be divided into forenoon and afternoon classes whenever the enrollment reaches 30. Carried.

On motion board adjourned.

ELSE STILL IN FIELD.

PLAN PARISH SOCIAL.

The Church of the Intercession is planning a parish party for Friday evening, Oct. 6. The object of the event is to get the members of the parish together for an informal social time, to introduce a number of new families and to lay plans for the winter's activity. Just what form the program will take has not been decided.

HAS BIG COMPANY.

The company that is to present "The Troubadours," the charming musical play, at the Parish House on Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 25 and 26, has been organized and rehearsals each evening are progressing nicely. There are nearly 100 people in the cast and choruses, representing some of the best talent in the city. Miss Simes of Chicago, a representative of a nationally known producing company, is in charge of the production, the costumes and effects for which are secured from away. The play is to be given by the Parish and St. Agnes' guild for the benefit of the parish.

MEET NEXT MONTH.

The fourth annual meeting of the Cent. Wisconsin Teachers' association will be held at Wausau on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 13th and 14th. Dr. Geo. E. Vincent, president of the University of Minnesota, will be one of the speakers, and among the others on the program are the following from this city: Prof. M. M. Ames, Prof. O. W. Neale, Prof. A. J. Herrick and Supt. H. C. Snyder. Prof. F. S. Hyer of this city is a member of the executive committee. It is expected that there will be a large representation of Stevens Point teachers at the meeting. The 1915 convention was held in this city.

BLOOD POISONING.

Until recently a big, strong man has been employed as fireman by a Milwaukee business concern which has been more than commonly interested in the welfare of its employees. The fireman isn't working any longer and the reasons makes a very interesting history and one which should prove generally instructive.

In the ordinary course of his employment this man scratched the back of one of his fingers slightly. Every employee had been instructed, under such circumstances, to go at once to one of the convenient first-aid cabinets, cleanse the wound with alcohol and immediately apply tincture of iodine, which is part of the equipment. Instead of doing this the man ignored the injury as being too trivial to deserve any attention.

A few days later his hand became red, hot, swollen and painful. He visited a physician who treated and dressed the hand and told the patient not to use it for a few days. Contrary to this advice, the man went back to work, grew worse and after a few more days died from general blood poisoning.

Spurred on by this sad experience, the company is now engaging a factory nurse to give personal supervision and compel, if necessary, the cooperation of employees who are careless not alone of their own lives and limbs but the company's interests as well. Another company in a similar case is reported to have been compelled to pay full death claim notwithstanding the fact that the carelessness was clearly not that of the employee.

The latter company, which had previously employed a nurse and provided its injured and sick employees with the best of medical and surgical care, added a new employee to insure them against similar financial loss. The man is mounted on a motorcycle and calls at the homes of employees who are absent without notifying their employers of an intention to "lay off." So much time of employees has been saved through this means that the company now considers the liability payment to have been, indirectly, the best investment ever made in their business.

People whose business it is to know of the comparatively large number of instances in which supposed trivial scratches result in death are not careless of minor injuries that occur to them.

If a man is inclined to lead a fast life he should lead it to a hitching post and tie it.

How to Give Good Advice.

The best way to give good advice is to set a good example. When others see how quickly you get over your cold by taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy they are likely to follow your example. This remedy has been in use for many years and enjoys an excellent reputation. Obtainable everywhere.

The really wise man probably is the one who knows he isn't very wise at all.

THE COMMUNITY IDEA

Comment and Suggestions Having the Welfare and Progress of Our Local Community as Its Object.

What's the matter with Mexico?

For decade upon decade this, one of earth's richest offerings to mankind, has been rent asunder by internal conflict.

Why?

Simply because the Mexican people have no conception of cooperation.

They have no understanding of man's duty to man; of man's dependence upon his fellows.

Instead of fellowship and friendliness there has been bickering and strife.

Factions have multiplied where there should have been unity of interests.

It has been a case of every one for himself and the Devil take the rest.

Yet let us not be too hasty in our criticisms.

Better is it that we take the Mexican situation as an object lesson for ourselves.

For with all our boasted civilization we too have much to learn of the value of cooperation.

Too often we are thoughtless of our fellows, and do not appreciate that in most instances their interests and ours are common.

A nation cannot thrive without the complete cooperation of all its units.

The same is true of the state, the county and the community.

There is no class of trade, no business activity, that is wholly independent.

No class of people is so set apart that they can wholly serve their own ends.

Production and consumption are interwoven and interdependent.

The consumer cannot get along without the producer; the producer cannot get along without the consumer.

The consumers of a community prosper in proportion to the prosperity of the producers, and vice versa.

No community can thrive when its citizens are without sympathy for each other's interests; when team work is lacking.

Let us learn from Mexico. Let us boost our community and the men of our community.

Let us work with each other and for each other and thus for ourselves.

Let us build up our community; not tear it down.

Let us be constructive; not destructive.

Through the elimination of all petty jealousies—by earnest team work—let us make our community what it should be.

MANY STEVENS POINT PEOPLE IN THIS CONDITION.

There is little rest for many a kidney sufferer. The kidneys feel congested, sore and painful. Urinary passages are often irregular and distressing. The sufferer, tired, worn-out; depressed.

Weak kidneys need quick help—Need a special kidney remedy. Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test.

Have proven their merit to thousands of kidney sufferers.

Can any Stevens Point reader doubt this evidence?

Mrs. Chris Larson, 616 Water St., Stevens Point, says: "I suffered terribly from pains in my back, which extended into my left side. I had sharp twinges through my kidneys and was troubled by the kidney secretions, too. In the morning I felt more tired than when I went to bed. I was discouraged, nervous and all worn-out. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Taylor's drug store and the first box relieved me. I didn't have to use any kidney medicine for six months and then I again took Doan's Kidney Pills. After I used three boxes, I was cured. I have had no need of them since."

CHANGED PLACES WITH WIFE.

The prize winning letter in the contest, "The Most Wonderful Man I Know" is in the October American Magazine. The writer says that when the husband was crippled for life he was forced to change places with his wife. This is part of the letter:

"The next day as they sat together the husband said, 'Lottie, I have solved the problem. We will change places. You take the examination that I have taken—I can teach you the work. You earn the salary. I'll keep house.'

"And they did. Each day the wife went forth. Each day the husband waved a cheery good-by above his crutches and turned back to the house.

"He swept and dusted; he scrubbed and cleaned without; he ironed the clothing; he made jellies and jams. As for his bread, it was a work of art and the boast of the neighborhood. Christmas, Thanksgiving, there was always a tableful with a gobbler done to a turn.

"Nor was this man behind the kitchen apron any less the man. He read broadly and intelligently. Even though he could discuss with Mrs. Neighbor the latest method of putting up currant jam, he was no less able to inform her husband of the last turn of the European situation, or to quote the latest phrase of Irish Home Rule oratory, and he stood strong for suffrage."

While a poor man knows his wife didn't marry him for his money, he would like to have the money and take chances.

THE SCHOOL QUESTION

Discussed by Contributor to Atlantic Monthly and Revised for Readers of The Gazette.

Latin is good mental discipline. Whether it is or is not, is a question to be settled afresh in every individual case, and it is a question to be settled by objective proofs. Milk and eggs are good for children if children grow fat on them. Latin is good for children if children thrive mentally on it. If a child does not thrive on milk and eggs, it is the doctor's problem to discover something that he will thrive on—bananas, for example. If boys and girls do not develop in love of learning and keenness of intellect on Latin, then the school, instead of folding its arms and calling them failures, must find out what will develop them.

When schools take this attitude, they will be clinics—clinics where children are observed and where indications of failure will be regarded in the first instance as indicating the school rather than the child or his parents. All the resources of modern knowledge and all varieties of modern activity and experience should be utilized in the effort to save children whom educational blood-letting or educational molasses and sulphur will kill.

In a properly conducted school every child is a problem, an individual problem, just as he is to the physician and just as there are children whom the family physician cannot treat, so there are children whom the ordinary schools teach—defective and abnormal children who require special treatment that special measures must be instituted for their benefit. But the common run of school failures represents, not the defect of the children but the resourcelessness of the school. Children fail in Latin—this may mean that instead of studying Latin at home they should have had supervised study at school. Or it may mean that it is a waste of time for them to study Latin.

Perhaps they ought to have been promoted in order to be able to study something else. This is what Mr. Spaulding did when superintendent of the Newton schools, and with marked success. Or, finally, a child may fail in Latin—I am assuming, you see, that it may be well for some children to study Latin—because the monotony of the school course depresses all his energies below the level at which he can succeed at anything.

President Eliot has characterized conventional school course as mainly a thing of words and symbols. Meanwhile, the world is full of objects, interests, problems, and our children abound in energy, spirit and desire! In such a world with such children, does it not stand to reason that an education in words and symbols ought to be made to justify itself?

Teachers may concede some force to what I am saying and still refuse to be held responsible. They may say, "This is all very well, but what can I do about it? The school has a curriculum. I know I didn't make it. I was taken to do this work. If I don't do it some other person in my place will." And the principal may say, "The children must go to college and the colleges insist on Latin and all the rest of it."

I should not primarily blame schools for teaching any particular subject if, while doing what they are forced to do teachers and principals were actively engaged in studying the results of their efforts and exhibiting them to the world. How many teachers of Latin and mathematics ever raise the question: What evidence is there that John and Sally get any mental discipline from Caesar or algebra?

The colleges have no business to run the secondary schools. How many head masters plainly tell them so?

Fortunately there is no dearth of men and women who are subjecting to analysis this aspect and then that aspect of school work. Experiments are in progress to ascertain and to test results. That attitude has come to prevail in medicine, so it must come to prevail in education. Mothers and fathers can hasten it if they will refuse to take anything for granted; if they will refuse to be overruled by tradition or large question-begging phrases, if they will refuse to allow their questions to be side-stepped. They have a right "to be shown," and there is something the matter if a school teacher or school principal cannot convince them that there is a good reason "why."

Is a year in high school worth $1,520 to your boy? Here is the way one practical calculator computes it: The average income of all farmers in a certain Missouri county having only a common school education is $604, while the average income of the high school graduate farmers is $908, an increase of $304. At five per cent $304 is the interest on $6,080 and it takes four years to acquire a high school education.—American Farming, Chicago.

Visitor—"Of what are you accused?" Convict—"Stealing a watch. I made a good fight for it. I had two lawyers, and sixteen witnesses came to prove an alibi. Both my lawyers made strong speeches to the jury. But all was in vain; I was sentenced to four years at hard labor. I don't see why you were not acquitted." "Well, there was just one weak point in my defense. They found the watch in my pocket."

If a man is going around looking for temptation, it won't be necessary to lead him into it.
